Questions 24-25

Most people suffer from back or neck pain at least once in their lives. It's easier to prevent back problems than to treat them. Exercise and posture are the most important things to keep in mind. Low impact exercise (such as swimming or walking) is the safest, especially if you are older or out of shape. If you lift weights, make sure to learn the proper techniques so that you don't strain anything. If you use a computer, raise the height of your monitor by putting it on a box or some books so that you don't need to arch your neck. Use a chair that supports your lower back, and get up often to walk or stand.

24. What is the main topic of this passage?
- (A) The factors contributing to neck pain.
  - (B) Why you shouldn't get an office job.
  - (C) How to take care of your spine.
  - (D) How to prevent workplace accidents.
25. Why is low impact exercise recommended?
- (A) So that you don't risk accident or injury.
  - (B) Because bending at the waist is not required.
  - (C) It is easier to obtain the necessary equipment.
  - (D) It is generally less expensive.
